

The 3-Story Library

Along with the Dining Hall, Campus center and gym, the library is one of the most popular locations at college. You would think there was some sort of event going on every night, with how packed it can get. It has everything you need... Internet, comfy chairs, group spaces, prehistoric books. But before you go running off to the library (once in your lifetime you will run to the library), you need to understand the scene.

The levels of the Library

Bottom floor- The Ball

You'd be hard pressed to find people actually studying on this floor. There are way too many social groups, talking about nothing to do with their studies or listening to music loud enough for everyone to hear. Yet this is a great level to start on if you told yourself you needed to get some studying done. At least you're there, right?!

Middle Floor- The Step-Sister

Here we have students trying really hard. They've booked a room, or have organized a study group and put their phones on silent. There are usually tutors on this level, so it is a bit welcoming. It is also much quieter up here, yet just enough noise to keep you sane. A lot of students make it to this level at least once per semester and that's OK to admit!

Top Level- The Wicked Witch

The top floor can give you the creeps. It is so quiet, you can hear a pin drop. If you were the one to drop that pin, leave. You would be getting some angry stares from everyone else up there. You don't speak, you turn your headphones way down and you bury your face in the books. That's it! Finals coming up? Get to the top floor!
